Smart Cloth Use: Maximize Efficiency and Hygiene

Utilize all 4 or 8 sides of the cloth, switching to a clean side when one becomes soiled.

- Choose the appropriate cloth for each specific task.
- Always clean from the cleanest areas first, moving toward the dirtiest areas last.

Colour-coding system

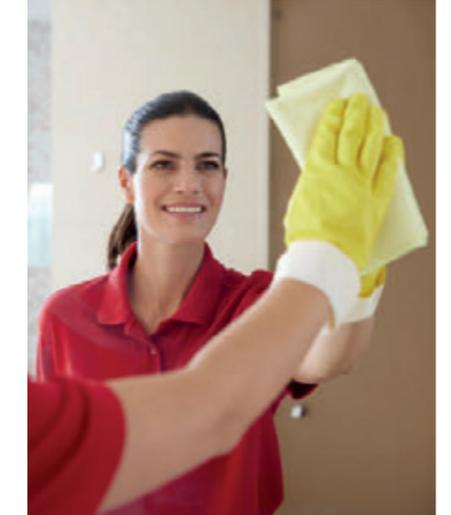

To reduce the risk of cross-contamination, assign specific wipe colours to different work areas. Create a customised colour-coding system tailored to each site's hygiene plan. For example:

Use a red cloth for higher risk areas like toilets, urinals.

Use a blue cloth for low risk areas such as lobbies, reception, bedroom

Use a yellow cloth for showers, washbasins, mirrors.

Use a green cloth for general food and bar use including dining areas

How is the r-range manufactured? From bottle to fabric

Postconsumer plastic → Shredded into flakes → Flakes are processed into fibres → Fibres are knitted into cloth → Vileda Professional "r-range"
